

Urban / Rural Conversation

ARTIST Timothy Orikri

To me, a true work of art can be described as a juxtaposition of complexity and simplicity. Art must be filled with strong emotional content and be based on the perception, expectations and experiences of the artist. I always make every effort to create my paintings based on these three concepts, but most especially, art must be timeless, with as much intrinsic relevance in today's world as in the future. I work with a variety of media, ranging from watercolor and acrylics to oil. I also tend to apply mixed media, which provides a unique surface quality to my work. My aspiration is that my art will contribute to the creation of a better world for all to enjoy.
