Former employee's perspectives

In their own words...

"The internship position I was fortunate to have this past summer at Bob O Link Golf Club is without a doubt one of the best decisions I have made. I was working in an environment where I was surrounded by knowledgeable people whom I shared genuine interests with. The degree of efficiency and detail that they operate at was far greater than the small public course where I had worked. I could not have felt more comfortable at Bob O'Link. The robust team atmosphere and daily support had me confident in my abilities to do almost any task by mid-way through the summer. I built friendships and a network of communications that I think would allow me to succeed in future endeavors. As I said before, the completion of this internship is one of the best life decisions I have made. I have grown as a worker, a student, and a young man. The skills I learned during this time will not be forgotten and I will be able to apply them to my future in turf management."

- Eric Raube, 2017 Intern

Club History

Bob O'Link was originally designed in 1916 by Donald Ross on 120 acres, the course was rebuilt in 1924 after the purchase of 40 additional acres of land west of the Skokie River. Captain Charles Hugh Alison of the English firm of Colt, McKenzie and Alison redesigned the course to utilize the additional land. While renovated at various times since then, the Alison design has served as the foundation of the course since re-opening on July 4th 1925. In 2015, the members of Bob O'Link courageously passed the Centennial Initiative Project. This was the largest undertaking since Alison redesigned the Ross course in 1924. It can best be described as an architectural restoration that is sympathetic to the modern golfer and includes state of the art infrastructure. The project, led by famed architect, Jim Urbina included restoration of 60 original Alison bunkers, recapturing acres of lost fairway space, removal of hundreds of trees that had suffocated turf, rebuilding of all greens to USGA specifications while maintaining the historic Alison shapes and contours, a new, state of the art irrigation and drainage pump system, and regrassing all playing surfaces.
