Methodology

We gathered demographic data, conducted a literature review of the health, social, and economic impacts of markets, studied seven different markets throughout Michigan through interviews and research as well as assessed potential sites for a future year-round market.

Current Market Locations

Currently there are two farmers markets in Bay City, the Bay City Farmers Market and the Bay County Farmers Market. They are both seasonal markets open during the summer.

Case Studies

Saginaw

The Downtown Saginaw Farmers’ Market is located 12.8 miles away from Bay City in the heart of Saginaw. The market season begins in May and ends in October on Monday’s, Wednesday’s, and Friday’s from 10AM to 3PM and Saturday’s 9AM-1PM. In 2017 Saginaw has plans to open a year-round market. This market will include an outdoor pavilion, a year-round indoor market, food processing, retail & office space, and commercial kitchens in 100,000 square-feet of mixed commercial zone.

Midland

The Midland Farmers Market is located 19.3 miles from the Bay City Market. The market is also open from May to October on Wednesday’s and Saturday’s from 7AM to 12PM. There is currently a waiting list for this market. They have an excellent customer following and a developing foodie population.

Recommendations

The Kellogg Foundation defined the main difficulties of markets as:

1. Difficulty attracting farmers
2. Insufficient customers
3. Inability to meet vendors’ financial expectations
4. Inability for small growers to meet food demands
5. Over-reliance on federal food programs/ lack of cash sales
6. Insufficient community buy-in
7. Difficulty in keeping the market producer-only

To solve these difficulties we have come up seven recommendations:

1. Join Michigan Farmers Market Association
2. Plan market times around the Midland and Saginaw Markets
3. Begin social media presence including Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, Snapchat etc.
4. Offer SNAP/ WIC cash and credit
5. Recruit vendors from both the Saginaw and Midland markets
6. Hire a full-time market manager
7. Pursue riverfront site as future farmers market site

Potential Sites

Bay County Market Site

Address: 108 Adams Street
Cost: $247,950

This location is where the current county market is as well as the flea market. There is a large pavilion and an adjacent vacant building for the potential for the market to be year-round.

Riverfront Site

Address: 1210 N Water Street
Cost: $100,250

The Riverfront site also includes a parking lot and an adjacent vacant building.
