

Rachel Carson

DISTINGUISHED LECTURE

Sustainability Science: An Emerging Interdisciplinary Frontier

William C. Clark
Harvard University

Dr. William C. Clark is the Harvey Brooks Professor of International Science, Public Policy, and Human Development in the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University. He is an international leader in Sustainability Sciences, co-chaired the National Research Council's study "Our Common Journey: A Transition toward Sustainability", and is editor of the Section on Sustainability Science for the Proceedings of U.S. National Academy of Sciences. His exceptional interdisciplinary research and other activities have been recognized by many prestigious honors and awards, such as membership in the National Academy of Sciences and the MacArthur Prize. Additional information about Dr. Clark, including representative publications, can be found at <http://www.csis.msu.edu/>.

Thursday, December 6, 2007 at 3:30 pm
(Reception to follow)

Radiology Auditorium
(on Service Road)

For directions, see <http://www.csis.msu.edu/>

Presented by the Center for Systems Integration and Sustainability, Department of Fisheries and Wildlife with support from the Office of the President; Office of the Provost; Office of the Vice President for Research and Graduate Studies; Graduate School; Environmental Science and Policy Program; College of Agricultural and Natural Resources; Michigan Agricultural Experimental Station; Center for Water Sciences; Sustainable Michigan Endowed Project; Science, Technology, Environment, and Public Policy Specialization; and Elton R. Smith Endowment.

Center for Systems Integration and Sustainability

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY