VI. EXTENSION AND OUTREACH

Facilitates community and regional economic workshops across Michigan to help communities identify and implement economic opportunities with a high likelihood of success. Conducts research on regional minority entrepreneurship, and quality of life relevant to maintaining populations, jobs, and income. Works with graduate students, postdoctoral scholars, and facilitates trainings for economic development professionals, stakeholders, public officials, and Extension educators to foster understanding of tools and research in economic development.

Extension and Outreach Publications and Presentations

Dr. Carpenter has written over 75 Extension/outreach publications, produced blog posts, provided interviews for popular press articles, developed the Economic Opportunity Mapping Tool – which was adopted by Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service, Michigan State University Extension, and University of Wyoming Extension – and presented at over 70 Extension/outreach conferences and meetings. He also researched and developed the History of Redlining in Michigan website, which has over 20,000 pageviews since it was first published in July 2021. It has been integrated into MSU Extension housing programs, invited to be presented by the National Land Use Planning Community of Practice to provide Certification Maintenance by the American Planning Association and the American Institute of Certified Planners (AICP), and by the Michigan State Housing Development Authority (MSHDA). It was cited multiple times in MSHDA’s first Statewide Housing Plan and won national awards from the National Association of Community Development Extension Professionals, Community Development Society, Agricultural and Applied Economics Association, USDA National Institute of Food and Agriculture and the Cooperative Extension System’s Extension Committee on Organization and Policy. He has also given many media interviews and been cited numerous times in print and on TV. A full list of Extension projects, publications, presentations, and media appearances is available upon request.
