

MSUAFRE JOB MARKET CANDIDATES AT THE 2018 AAEA ANNUAL MEETING

DANIELLE KAMINSKI

kamin107@msu.edu

Danielle is a PhD student graduating in Spring 2019 who specializes in applied microeconomics, choice behavior, human resource management, and labor economics. Her job market paper is titled, "Milk Produced Under Certified Labor Conditions: Are U.S. Consumers Willing to Pay for It and Does Prior Information Impact Their Behavior?"

Danielle will present her job-market paper on August 7 at 4:45PM in the Virginia A Meeting Room and will be available for interviews throughout the conference. She also plans to attend the post-conference workshop on NAFTA and other policy issues.

EVGENIYA MOSKALEVA

moskalev@msu.edu

Evgeniya is a PhD student graduating in Fall 2018 who specializes in development economics and the economics of migration. Her job-market paper is titled, "Impacts of Youth Migration on the Livelihood of Households Left Behind: Evidence from Tanzania."

Evgeniya will be available for interviews throughout the conference.

QI TIAN

tianqi@msu.edu

Qi is a PhD student graduating in Spring 2019 who specializes in applied econometrics, experimental and behavioral economics, and environmental economics. Her job-market paper is titled, "Regret Minimization in Decision Making: Implications for Choice Modeling and Policy Design."

Qi will present her job-market paper on August 7 at 10AM in the Roosevelt Room 2 Meeting Room and will be available for interviews throughout the conference.

JINA YU

yujina@msu.edu

Jina is a PhD student graduating in Spring 2019 who specializes in food safety, climate change, environmental economics, biotechnology, and machine learning. Her job-market paper is titled, "The Impact of Bt Corn on Aflatoxin-Related Insurance Claims in the United States."

Jina will be available for interviews throughout the conference. She also plans to attend several post-conference workshops at ERS.