World Food Prize Michigan Youth Institute registrations due April 1

As millions across the globe deal with food insecurity, the World Food Prize Michigan Youth Institute (WFP MIYI) offers young people an opportunity to be part of the solution. Held May 9, the event seeks to inspire and prepare the next generation of global leaders to end world hunger.

Occurring in two locations, East Lansing and Marquette/Chatham, attendees have the opportunity to share their ideas related to global food security with experts and other Michigan youth while learning how university faculty and staff members, researchers and students are working to address world hunger.

To participate, youth should be in grades 8-12 and register by the April 1 deadline. As part of the registration process, youth are required to prepare a two- to five-page research paper about one of twenty grand global challenges which are related to food, hunger and poverty. At the event, youth present and discuss their papers with other attendees and research and industry experts. They also participate in interactive activities related to global food challenges and engage with area experts to discuss solutions to global hunger and poverty.

The top performing students at the WFP MIYI will be selected to attend the World Food Prize Global Youth Institute in Des Moines, Iowa, in October. For more information, visit <https://www.canr.msu.edu/wfpmiyi/>. Registrations and papers are due April 1.

5 tips for building 5 key leadership skills—Part 1: Making decisions

It is important for youth to be able to practice decision-making skills in order to increase their abilities. Here are a few things even new volunteers can do to develop the decision-making skills of their participants:

- Allow youth to make their own decisions, even if the adult volunteers don't agree. Youth may consider different influences than adults when making their decision, and it may end up being a better decision. If you are an adult, try to recall a time when someone told you what to do and you thought it was the wrong decision. How did that make you feel?
- Let youth experience the consequences of their decisions. It is easy for adults to want to "fix" a decision they believe is wrong, but the youth will learn more by seeing a decision through to the end result.
- With younger children, give them two specific options to choose from. This will help them build confidence in making decisions in a more controlled situation. They will also appreciate having some degree of control over their experience.
- Help youth actively think about their voice. Take polls to let them make decisions as a group (which toppings to order on a pizza, whether to meet Tuesday or Saturday next week, which community service project they want to work on).
- Engage youth in current events. Give them a space to talk about what's going on and what they think about it. Allow them to have differing opinions, but make sure they treat all opinions with respect.

For more information, visit https://www.canr.msu.edu/news/5_tips_for_building_youths_leadership_skills_part_1_making_decision_s.

Prospective Volunteers

All prospective volunteers must go through the Volunteer Selection Process in its entirety prior to being accepted as a volunteer. Any adult who is involved in a club activity on an ongoing basis (more than 4 meetings) must go through this process. The full process can be found at http://www.canr.msu.edu/resources/msu_extension_volunteer_selection_process.

Contact the Extension office with any questions!
