Focused Community Engagement

What	Engagement with a variety of food system leaders who authentically represented communities most impacted by racial, socioeconomic, environmental inequities
Key Approaches	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Identified key subject matter experts from all parts of the food systems • Used a variety of engagement formats (in-depth interviews, listening sessions) co-designed with community consultants • Compensated participants at ~ $100 per hour • Followed up with report back presentations
Why	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • To focus the updated Food Action Plan on the priorities and solutions of frontline communities • To align with values and racial equity analyses

On behalf of the City's Food Action Plan Team, thank you to the more than 250 community leaders and representatives from community-based organizations, coalitions, businesses, and institutions who provided expertise and input to help develop the Food Action Plan Update.

Key themes from the 2021-2022 community engagements are summarized in these reports and presentations:

- Community Engagement Report Back Presentation
- Community Engagement Full Report
- Community Leader Interviews Report
- Native & Indigenous Foods Listening Session Report

In July and August 2022, themes and learnings from community engagement were used to develop a draft Strategic Priorities and Actions document, which was made available for public comment. View the feedback: seattlefoodactionplan.consider.it

Iterative, Collaborative Writing Process

What	Used an iterative and collaborative process to write the Food Action Plan
Key Approaches	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Used a variety of methods – sequential, parallel, all-in/reactive writing “Mark up” process – mapped engagement findings onto early drafts, lots of annotations and comments Continuously tested for alignment with values and RETs.
Why	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Avoid an echo chamber effect To share power in the content and foster shared ownership of the final product Plan Encourage deeper analysis and create content that comprehensive and actionable
