About the webinar: In this webinar, participants will be introduced to the North Central Region Aging Network (www.ncran.org) and its mission; the research and resources that the Network has developed; and the Network's successes to date. The presenters will also explore the primary tenants of successful multi-state collaborations that they believe have influenced the Network's effectiveness and influence across the country.

Presented by:

Dr. Erin Yelland, is an assistant professor and extension specialist in the College of Health and Human Sciences at Kansas State University. Dr. Yelland's outreach agenda focuses on promoting health and wellness across the lifespan to influence optimal aging. Her research agenda includes a focus on program evaluation as well as exploring sexual health and wellness in later life.

James Bates, Ph.D. is an associate professor and field specialist of family wellness with Ohio State University Extension. He studies grandfathers and grandparent-grandchild relationships and the impact on grandparents. He has taught programs about grandparenting, parenting, and successfully navigating co-parenting relationships.

Dr. Jacquelyn Benson has a dual appointment at the University of Missouri as an Assistant Professor of Human Development and Family Science and State Specialist in Gerontology for the College of Human Environmental Sciences Cooperative Extension. Dr. Benson's research agenda includes a focus on understanding how later life repartnering relationships are associated with personal health, caregiving, and family life, and also includes investigating new ways to support family caregivers of older individuals receiving palliative or hospice care.
