Pumpkins Galore: Pumpkinfest 2021!

MSU Tollgate Farm was host to over 3,400 visitors, volunteers, and exhibitors the weekend of October 2-3, 2021! Many smiles and the sounds of laughter and happy voices greeted those who came to celebrate fall on the farm at our annual harvest festival. Historic baseball, a u-pick pumpkin patch, educational exhibits galore, music, harvest story time, farm animals, fishing, delicious snacks, and lots of children's activities filled the farm for a fun community event.

It is through the generous support of our sponsors that MSU Tollgate Farm is able to make a powerful positive difference in the lives of others. Adults and kids are able to participate in place-based STEM programs and camps with the help of funds raised through the MSU Tollgate Farm Pumpkinfest. Fall Updates from the Sustainable Agriculture Team

The Sustainable Agriculture Program wrapped up the final distribution of our 20-week Summer CSA on October 6th. We had another great summer with our members! On October 13th we started our 8-week Fall CSA. While the Summer CSA is highlighted with tomatoes, peppers, eggplants, summer squash and cucumbers, the Fall CSA has a focus on storage vegetables like onions, winter squash, potatoes, parsnips, beets and carrots. Interested in joining us for the 2022 Summer CSA? Email MSUE.TollgateCSA@campusad.msu.edu to be put on the waitlist. Registration will launch early 2022.

In addition to harvest for the CSA, the crew is busy readying the farm for winter. All of the summer crops like tomatoes and peppers have been pulled and composted, our caterpillar tunnels have been deconstructed, our irrigation is rolled up, and we are deep into planning for next season. In the coming weeks we are looking forward to the last big project of the 2021 Season, planting garlic!

FOOD SAFETY TIPS FOR BACK TO SCHOOL LUNCHESES
 WRITTEN BY LAURIE WILSON

Food safety tips for back to school lunches
 Written by Laurie Wilson

Back to school is a very busy time in households with preschool or school-age children. Even amidst the stress of morning hustle, it's important to remember that children who eat well do better in school. So not only is morning breakfast critical for kids heading off to school, so is what goes in your child's lunch box.

Now that school is back in session, chances are you may pack a cold lunch some of the time. Keeping those nutritious foods safe from bacterial growth is a challenge, though. A significant amount of time passes from early morning when the lunch leaves your home until your child's lunch time at school. Keeping perishable foods cold during this entire time is critical to preventing bacterial growth. Michigan State University Extension recommends these tips to help keep those packed lunches safe:

- Always start your lunch packing and food prep with clean hands and clean surfaces to reduce the risk of contamination. Get your child involved in packing their lunch, and ensure that everyone washes their hands for at least 20 seconds before beginning. This will decrease the spread of bacteria.
- Perishable foods — such as leftovers, casseroles, soups, meats, meat sandwiches, eggs, dairy products and vegetables — must be kept cold below 40 degrees Fahrenheit to prevent bacteria from multiplying and contaminating food.
- Add a cold source to your child's lunch. Use an icepack or consider freezing part of the lunch such as water bottle, yogurt, pudding, applesauce or a 100 percent juice box, and pack it next to the perishable food right before your child leaves for school.
- Use an insulated lunch bag. Empty and wash the bag each night after use.
- Rinse fruits and vegetables under running water and dry them before adding them to the lunch box.
- Pack lunches the night before and store them in the refrigerator to keep them cold and safe. This also makes the morning rush easier.
- If a refrigerator is available at preschool or school, remind your child to put their lunch inside.
- Remind children not to eat any foods leftover from lunch after school on the bus or at home if they have not been kept cold since lunch time.

Also remember if packing safe lunches isn't convenient in your household, school lunches provided by the school are a healthful and free or low-cost option. If you would like to know if your child is eligible to receive free or reduced-price school meals, contact the school food service director or your school principal.
